

Abstract

An image reading apparatus having an original base unit on which an original is placed, a light source for illuminating the original on the original base unit, a light-receiving unit for receiving light reflected from the original, air blasting unit for sending air in the direction away from the light source, and a wall surface for allowing air sent from the air blasting unit toward the light source.